Nothing beats the fun of placing wagers while watching a match live.

There are 36 states in the United States where sports betting is allowed in one form or another.

Professional sports teams now have sportsbooks located in the stadiums in which they play.

A bill to legalize sports betting has been put forth with no success in each of the past three years.

There are loopholes to get around this, but none of those efforts have received any momentum either.

Alabama Bills to legalize sports betting have failed to make it all the way through the state legislature over the previous two years.

That bills keep getting put forth is good news, but the state senate has been where these have gone to die with no progress made within that part of the chamber.

Missouri

This is one of the big prizes for sportsbooks, should sports betting get legalized.

The state is massive in size and population, and there is real momentum for this to get done.
