Experts in Washington predict that although sports betting may not become legal right away, it's something that should and will happen eventually.

Also unique to Washington, compared to all other states with tribal casinos, is that none of the revenues earned from the tribal casinos are shared with the state.

Since sports gambling is not legal in Washington at this time, there are no state-endorsed online betting sites or even land-based sportsbooks that residents can use.

While it's not technically illegal for players to use these sites, doing so is definitely risky.

Since there is no legal sports betting offered in the state, there is no place to play legally and no promotional offers to speak of.

Make sure to read the fine print on any bonus offer before accepting it to make sure there are no surprises down the road.

Chances are, like many other parts of the country where sports gambling remains seen as a negative, Washington will watch from a distance and see how other states fare first.

In the medium to long term there are plenty of reasons to be optimistic.
