California is currently in a period of transition as it decides what path the state will take following the removal of PASPA.

By finding in favor of New Jersey in their bid to allow sports betting, the Supreme Court opened the door for other states to decide their own laws regarding live and online sports betting.

As states across the US relax their laws surrounding sports betting, it is likely to only grow more popular in the coming years.

Are There any Legal Online Sportsbooks Currently Hosted in California?

California is home to 19 professional sports franchises in baseball, hockey, football, soccer, and basketball.

As another low scoring sport, spread betting is not common in soccer.

The rich tradition of college football in California has seen 14 Heisman trophy winners come from the Golden State.

And while there is no guarantee, it looks extremely probable that legal sports betting will be available in California in the next few years.
