The dealer burns the first card face up and then based on its respective numeri cal value, with aces worth 1 and face cards worth 10, the dealer burns that many cards face down.

If the banker's total is 2 or less, then the banker draws a card, regardless of what the player $#39$; s third card is.

However the majority of the time if you are betting in-play you will find the be st value at the betting exchanges.

In the past many people used this strategy pre-match. You don't have to trade out of this position either.

Perhaps they are second place in the league and a win would put them top. Or maybe its a cup game and they really don't want to go to a replay. In the example above the score was 0-0 after around 60 minutes.

With in-play betting and trading the odds in these markets have to consistently change with the dynamics of the game.
