For land-based casinos, the tax will be applicable on the face value of the chips purchased at each venue.

This was filed ahead of last week's 50th GST Council and covered issues related to taxation on gambling.

The news led to a negative reaction from the All India Gaming Federation (AIGF), the apex industry body for online gambling in India.

In a statement issued to iGB, the AIGF said the rate will make it harder for businesses to survive.

"At this valuation of taxation, companies will be paying more in taxes than they will be generating in revenue.

These include state-wide gambling bans.

Should the body not create sufficient standards, the government could take measures to rectify non-compliance.
