We're still more than two months away from the arrival of the 2023 college football season but it's never too early to look ahead at the games that unfold the first couple weeks.

There are a handful of intriguing games set to unfold early in the season and none stand out more than LSU and Florida State's battle.

It'll feature two high-level quarterbacks and all-time great programs, which typically make for a thrilling outcome.

Outside of that game, there will be plenty of eyes on TCU's season opener against Colorado.

We could also see College Football Playoff contenders tested early as Clemson battles Duke and Washington hosts Boise State.

The transfer portal is used as an improvement tool and it'll be interesting to see which programs see a seamless transition with newcomers and which struggle early due to a lack of chemistry.
