European Blackjack

In some live casinos, players can even take advantage of card counting and other advantage techniques to gain the upper hand over the house—a rarity in the gambling world.

A hand starts out with each player making a bet and receiving two cards face up.

Double Down: On their initial hand, the player doubles their bet in exchange for one more card, after which they must stand.

If the player has a blackjack, taking insurance guarantees an even money win regardless of the dealer's hand: in most cases, the dealer will simply ask a player if they want to take even money, but it's just another way of taking insurance.

A European Twist

Several other rule changes also mix things up.

The dealer normally stands on a soft 17, though this is not universal; when this is the case, it is slightly favorable to the player.
